

I oppose the weakening of Indiana's telephone privacy law as proposed in Proceeding 02-278. Just because I have an ongoing business relationship with a company does not mean that I want them soliciting me for additional business with a barrage of phone calls. They have my contact information with other methods to communicate with me. These businesses rarely, if ever, call by phone with regard to my accounts -- almost always through mailed notifications. Therefore, they do not need to start calling me with solicitations. Please keep Indiana's law intact.
